

Adult Con

Every year, Adult Con draws in more than five thousand sexually-frustrated people from all over Southern California. They get together at the Staples Center in sunny Los Angeles to ogle at glossy naked ladies and share their collective love for all things carnal. Here, they proudly celebrate America's porn stars and support the desirable art of erotic entertainment.

Whether you want to take part in the fun or just want to watch, Adult Con's got something for everyone — as long as you're over 18.

Models Alie Layus and Lisa Kai are in charge of the arts and crafts table — they're handing out paint brushes and inviting everyone to show off their artistic talents on the most natural canvases possible: their bodies. All you have to do is pay five dollars to join in on the fun and, in return, you'll get a one-of-a-kind poster, boobie-stamped and signed by the ladies themselves.

If fine art isn't really your thing, try sitting in one of the chairs around the red carpet. Leggy Amazonian women climb onto whoever's in the hot seat and attract a flock of paparazzi. You might feel like a part of an animal exhibit at the zoo with everyone circling around, but hey, we've all got to channel our primal sides every once in a while, right?

If you're in the mood for something just as wild but a little less salty, get some Lollicocks from Twisted Cherry or head over to the baked goods, brought to you by Erotica Cakes. You might not want to ruin these thoughtful works of art, but trust me, after the first bite, you'll be cumming back for more.

Sergeant Trixie Sunshine is the head representative of the military department, saluting passersby with gusto that just oozes her patriotism. And even though she's dressed in camouflage, there's no denying her radiant and indisputable presence that's just aching to pop out.

Don't forget to grab some titties on your way out of Adult Con. These stress-reliever balls are free to take and fondle as you exit the Staples Center. And, trust us, squeezing these boobies are a sure-fire way to make your drive out of Los Angeles traffic a hell of a lot more fun.
